Five Star Hotel Boutique open in Trujillo

Trujillo, in La Libertad region, in Peru's North Coast, now has its first five-star hotel boutique, called "De Sol y Barro Huaca de la Luna Sanctuary Lodge"; named after the archaeological complex of the Mochica culture, located in front of the hotel, the Huaca del Sol y de la Luna.

The new hotel sets a new concept in hospitality establishments, and is strategically located at only 15 minutes of Trujillo's historic downtown and 20 minutes away from its airport, and close to the new Huaca de la Luna site museum. The hotel decoration is based on motifs from ancient Moche culture, harmonizing with the environment.

Machu Picchu Reopening

A total of 157.203 tourists received the Inca citadel of Machu Picchu, three months after its reopening after the rains that damaged the railway track allowing access.

43.302 visitors came in April, four thousand 848 of them through the Inca Trail, also reopened to the public on the first day of that month.

It also represents the month of May more visits with 58.856. In June, the level was maintained with a total of 55 000 45 visitors. In the case of the Inca Trail were almost all foreign tourists interested in this route.
